PERSONAL STATEMENT:

We are at the precipice of our career in the aviation industry; now is the time to be involved and incite change.

A leader is responsible for taking risks that others are not willing to take. They are confident enough to make a decision; and if they make a mistake, the leader must have the courage to rectify, assume their guilt, and take the right path—without blaming it on others. Good leaders are ahead of their time; they see opportunities where others do not, and know how to spread enthusiasm for the betterment of the membership. I would like to continue to be that leader for you at DFW.

We have seen DFW stand together and be heard. We have seen individuals uniting as one for the amelioration of the membership—but not simply as a number. Moving forward we will continue to use our integrity, determination, and willpower as our firm foundation for you.

I humbly ask for your faith and your vote, so I may once more serve as your DFW Base President.
